Gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity plan 2018 for the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology

Background
Gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity work at the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology is based on current legislation, with the Discrimination Act\(^1\) as its foundation, and follows Lund University’s central policy for gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity (reg. no PE 2011/177) and the University’s strategic plan. The central policy has no expiration date and stipulates that each faculty is to develop its own plans and work in a systematic and purposeful way to promote gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity. The strategic plan states in addition that gender equality and diversity are to be fundamental principles for all parts of our organisation.

In accordance with the new rules of the Discrimination Act, we are to take active measures to work systematically and preventively to counteract discrimination and in other ways promote equal rights and opportunities regardless of gender, transgender identity or expression, ethnicity, religion or other belief, disability, sexual orientation or age. The work with active measures is to be carried out continuously and be documented on a regular basis.

The Board of the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology addresses issues of gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity through its working committee (AU in Swedish) on two pre-set occasions per semester. The faculties’ contact person for issues concerning gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity (who is also the faculties’ work environment coordinator) serves as the rapporteur on these issues in the context of the faculty board, working committee and operational boards, and assists in other ways in terms of preparation and processing. The contact person also serves as administrative support and follows up the faculties’ plan.

The Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology are represented in the central management team for gender equality and equal opportunities through a member who works closely with the contact person.

Action plan

The Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology’s plan for gender equality, equal opportunities and diversity is a concrete action plan that forms the basis for faculty-wide measures and is part of the documentation required by the Discrimination Act. The action plan covers both students and staff. The work with measures in the action plan, including the follow-up, is coordinated by the faculties’ contact person.

In compliance with the principal documents, the action plan is divided into six focus areas identified as relevant at the faculty level, see the following:

- Discrimination
- Equal opportunities and victimisation
- Recruitment and promotion
- Leadership – professional development
- Salaries and terms of employment
- Gender and intersectional perspectives

The focus areas include the measures and the follow-up deemed relevant by the faculty board’s working committee.

Discrimination

The purpose of the Discrimination Act is to combat discrimination and in other ways promote equal rights and opportunities regardless of sex, transgender identity or expression, ethnicity, religion or other belief, disability, sexual orientation or age. The work and study environments at the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology are to be permeated by an inclusive spirit, free from all types of discrimination and harassment.

Equal opportunities and victimisation

The University’s policy clarifies both the equal opportunities perspective, which involves creating common policies for equal opportunities, and the diversity perspective, which aims to create an awareness and understanding of diversity. Work and study environments are to be adapted to provide equal opportunities to work at the faculties. The Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology work preventively with the dissemination of information concerning equal opportunities and discrimination issues with initiatives such as the guide² for students, which covers the issues. The faculties also follow the central procedures concerning how victimisation is to be prevented and handled.

Recruitment and promotion

Recruitment issues concern the recruitment of both students and staff. Active recruitment and career planning is to contribute to gender equality and diversity at the various educational levels and among staff.

With regard to student recruitment, it is important, as part of the process of widening recruitment, participation and equal opportunities, to provide different forms of assistance during the study period, such as adequate introductory activities, mentoring, language support, and other specific support measures.

With regard to the recruitment and promotion of staff, Lund University’s policy emphasises that assessments based on expertise are to serve as a basis, and that human resources planning is to be strategic with active gender equality goals.

The Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology strive to achieve an even gender balance in the recruitment to research studies programmes. Information meetings about research studies and how to apply are conducted at every department prior to each application round to encourage also those prospective doctoral students who are uncertain whether to apply for research studies.

The Academic Appointments Board has devised procedures to take gender equality into account when recruiting. The vice-chancellor’s decision on new procedures to increase gender equality in the recruitment of professors (STYR 2016/1133) is taken into account and is also the basis for the work.

Leadership – professional development
In accordance with the University’s policy, the objective of the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology is that the boards, committees, management teams and collegial bodies at all levels have an even gender balance.

Salaries and terms of employment
The Discrimination Act stipulates that, every year, the employer is to map and analyse salaries in order to detect, correct and prevent unjustified differences in pay and terms of employment between women and men. The Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology are informed of these general mappings made available by the University. Before the annual salary negotiations and for new appointments, the salaries within the different units of the faculties are analysed with regard to any unjustified differences in pay.

Gender and intersectional perspectives
Lund University's policy emphasises that an integrated gender and intersectional perspective in teaching and education is to be intensified. For a Bachelor’s degree at the Joint Faculties of Humanities and Theology, the students shall, in addition to the qualitative targets of the Higher Education Ordinance, be able to apply gender, ethnicity and diversity perspectives. The faculties also work in accordance with the University’s policy for quality assurance and quality enhancement of education (reg. no 2016/179), which stipulates, among other things, the criterion that “gender equality and equal opportunities perspectives are integrated in education” and are to be followed up and monitored by the faculties’ own quality assurance system.
